MOTIVATING STRATEGY

IMPORTANT!

Present Perfect

UNFINISHED

HOW LONG

I've known Karen since 1994.
She's lived in London for three years.
Use with: since 2010, since
July,
for ten years, for three days.

UNFINISHED TIME WORD

Use with: ever, never.

PRESENT RESULT

I've lost my keys (so I can't get into my house).

NEWS / RECENT EVENTS

The Queen has given a speech.
Use with: just / yet / already / recently.

IMPORTANT!

Present Perfect

To make the positive present perfect tense, use: 'have' / 'has' + the past participle

The negative is really simple too. Just put 'not' after 'have' or 'has'

To make a question, put 'have' or 'has' in front of

'have' or 'has' + the past participle

- Make the past participle (add 'ed' to regular verbs (for example, 'play' becomes 'played')
- There are a few verbs that change their spelling when you add ''ed' (for example, 'study' becomes 'studied')
- We also have some

Negative

I haven't eaten breakfast
too

'Yes'

You haven't Where have I left my umbrella?

He haven't What have you done today?

she haven't Why has he gone already?

She haven't Where has she been in the UK?

It haven't Why has it rained so much this summer?

we haven't What have we done?

We haven't Where have they learned English before?
They haven't learned the food

Negative Short Form

They haven't tried

A collocation is a group of words that go together.

Be aware of collocations, and try to recognize them when you see or hear them.

Agreeing: So - Neither

SO

SO is used to show agreement with positive statements.

SO + Auxiliary/Be + Subject (pronoun)

The Auxiliary (or To Be/Have) needs to agree with the verb tense in the original statement.

It is similar to using TOO at the end of a sentence.

A: I am happy.

B: so am I. (= I am happy too)

NEITHER

Neither is used to show agreement with negative statements.

Neither + Auxiliary + Subject (pronoun)

The Auxiliary needs to agree with the verb tense in the original statement.

It is similar to using either at the end of a sentence, although Neither is more commonly used, especially in spoken English.

A: I don't understand Spanish.

B: Neither do I. (= I don't understand Spanish either.)

Agreeing: So - Neither

Reading

Yesterday Debbie had a job interview. She went downtown to the company. The interview was for an accounting job. Debbie graduated university 3 months ago.

Her interview was at 10:00 am. She woke up at 7:00 am and left her house before 8:00 am. She waited for the bus, but it was late. She was very worried because she did not want to be late for the interview. She tried to phone the company to warn them, but her phone battery was dead. When the bus arrived, it was almost 9:00 am. Then the bus was slow because there were many other cars. The bus finally arrived at Debbie's stop at 9:45 am.

Debbie ran from the bus stop to the office building. When she entered she saw a sign that said the company was on the 24th floor. The elevator ride took almost 5 minutes because many people stopped at different floors.

When Debbie arrived at reception, it was 9:58. She was in time!

"I am here to see Mrs. Lewis" said Debbie.

The receptionist checked her book and replied:

"She is not here today. What is your name please?"

"My name is Debbie Gregson."

"Sorry Debbie, but your appointment is tomorrow."

Debbie checked her agenda. It was true. She was there on the wrong day!
